Former White House chef praises Morrisville State

Sunday, April 22, 2007

A dozen Morrisville State College students taking an all-day food safety certification class Friday studied alongside a former White House chef.

Marty Mongiello served during Bill Clinton's presidency as sous chef for official state dinners and resort manager at Camp David. On Friday, Mongiello was in Morrisville to receive his master certified food executive designation from the International Food Service Executives Association.

Mongiello complimented the students for being attentive and kind and gave Morrisville State College even bigger kudos.
